

Class of 1954 Reunion

'78 Neil Goff was recognized by the Denver Business Journal in its "Best of the Bar" series as the best tax attorney in Denver. He is currently a partner in the firm Lowe, Fell & Skogg. He and his wife live in Centennial, Colorado. They have 3 children, ages 17, 22 and 25.

'80 Steven J. Jager has opened his own firm, Jager Law Office, located in downtown Seattle. His practice areas include construction defect, personal injury, toxic tort, products liability, complex litigation and defense. Address: 600 Stewardt St., Ste 1100, Seattle, Wa. 98103.

Houston Putnam Lowry

Houston Putnam Lowry who practices in Connecticut, was recently sworn in as a freeman of the City of London and installed as a Liveryman of the Worshipful Company of Arbitrators.

'81 Susan Voss has been named commissioner of the Iowa Insurance Division, which regulates the insurance industry in the state. Susan was appointed to the post by Gov. Tom Vilsack. As insurance commissioner, Susan heads up a 95-person division with an annual budget of $9.5 million.

'82 Steve Lingenbrink has recently been elected to the Washington State Trial Lawyers (WSTLA) Board of Governors for 2004-2006. Lingenbrink, a Kirkland Washington attorney and a principal in the firm of Trudell, Bowen & Lingenbrink, is active outside of the profession. He is President of Bellevue Breakfast Rotary Club, a service organization which assists needy families on a local, national and international level. As part of this work, Lingenbrink recently traveled to Guatemala where he assisted rural villagers in acquiring ownership of the land they farmed. This is done under an award winning United Nation's program designed to break intransigent cycles of poverty. Lingenbrink had previously undertaken service trips under the auspices of his church to assist orphanages in Romania and Russia. Lingenbrink is also President of both Bellevue Networkers and Kirkland Networkers, organizations designed to assist local businesses with leads and business development information.

Kimberly K. Hornak

'83 Kimberly K. Hornak has been appointed to a two-year term as presiding judge of the 3rd District Juvenile Court in Salt Lake City Utah. As presiding judge, she will oversee the day-to-day operations of her court in addition to her regular judicial duties. Judge Hornak began her legal career as a staff attorney with Utah Legal Services in Ogden and at the Legal Aid Society. She was an assistant attorney general from 1986 to 1988, and worked as a deputy Salt Lake County attorney until former Utah Governor Mike Leavitt appointed her to the bench in 1994.

'84 Paul Burglin is the co-author of a two-volume treatise entitled California Drunk Driving Law (James Publishing, 2004). Paul practices criminal defense in San Francisco, Marin, and Napa counties. Burglin lives in San Rafael, California with his wife Mona and their five children.

Paul Burglin

Laura D. Cooper has received the President's Award for Public Service from the Oregon State Bar Board of Governors. Laura credits her experience in the Thomas More Scholarship program as having a major influence in shaping her personal commitment to public service.

'89 Mary Ellen Gaffney-Brown has been appointed to a three-year term as a Lawyer Representative from the Eastern District of Washington to the Ninth Circuit Judicial Conference. The appointment was made by The Honorable Fred Van Sickle, Chief United States District Judge. Ms. Gaffney-Brown, a partner in the Spokane law firm of Lineberger & Gaffney-Brown, PLLC, is President Elect of the Bankruptcy Bar Association for the Eastern District of Washington. She is also a past chair of the Creditor/Debtor Section of the Washington State Bar Association and former Trustee of the Spokane County Bar Association. Her private practice areas include commercial litigation and bankruptcy. She is currently the attorney for the Chapter 7 Trustee, in the Metropolitan Investment Securities Estate.

Michele Shaw was recently appointed to assist a 13 year old boy charged with murder in Grant County Washington. The boy and his co-defendant are the youngest murder defendants ever to stand trial as adults in the modern history of the state. The appointment was made at the urging of a co-counsel who asked for an attorney experienced in complex criminal defense matters. Shaw certainly qualifies as experienced. She serves on an American Bar Association board for lawyers specializing in juvenile cases, and she has been certified by the Washington State Supreme Court to handle death penalty cases. Previously, she had represented the Green River killer, Gary Ridgway; and had handled several high profile juvenile murder cases, including Barry Loukaitis, a 14-year-old convicted in 1997 of killing his teacher and two classmates at a Moses Lake high school. Shaw agreed to take on this case at a $75-per-hour rate – $25 less than the county had been paying the boy’s previous attorney.

'92 Douglas D. Phelps played a major role in the recent Supreme Court landmark decision of Washington v. Blakely which impacted both state and federal sentencing guidelines. Phelps represented Mr. Blakely in Grant County and he did the original appeal. An attorney from the National Association of Criminal Defense Attorneys successfully took the appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

'94 Cynthia Newton was recently elected Circuit Court Judge for Florida’s 6th Circuit covering Pinellas and Pasco counties. An Assistant Public Defender in Florida, for the last ten years, Judge Newton waged a successful year-long campaign against four other challengers. Her term began January 2005.

Cynthia Newton

Rex Staples has been appointed General Counsel of North American Securities Administrators Association, Inc. Staples, 46, brings considerable experience to his new position. He comes to his current position from the Washington State Securities Division, where he held a succession of legal and management positions. Association Executive Director John Hanley cited Staples’ key role in last year’s analyst global settlement and service as the attorney-in-charge for the U.S. Bancorp Piper Jaffray analyst investigation. NASAA is the oldest international organization devoted to investor protection. Its membership consists of the securities administrators in the 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Canada, and Mexico.

Paul Schlossman

'97 Paul Schlossman spoke at a ceremony awarding U.S. Representative Jim McDermott the Ralph J. Bunche award. This is a special award given by the World Peace through Law section of the Washington State Bar Association. The event was held April 30 in Seattle at the Washington Athletic Club. Last year’s Bunche award recipient was Professor Robert Araujo, S.J., of Gonzaga Law School.

Laura Mancuso and her husband welcomed their first child, Anthony, on January 9, 2004. In December Laura was promoted to Captain in the Air Force Reserves. The summer of 2003, she attended the Judge Advocate Staff Officer course in Alabama – making a switch from her previous position as an Aircraft Maintenance Officer. Laura continues to practice law with Baumgartner, Nelson & Price in Vancouver, WA.

'98 Cindy Gideon has been appointed Assistant Attorney General with the Government Compliance and Enforcement Division in Olympia.

Michael E. Johnston has been appointed Assistant Attorney General for the Torts Division in Olympia.

Melissa M. (Poyant) Simpson, her husband, Michael, and daughter, Savannah, announce the birth of Delaney Kathryn, December 28, 2004. Melissa is a Lead Case Law Editor with LexisNexis.

'99 Steven Marlowe was sworn in as Assistant Attorney General for the State of Oregon. Hardy Myers, Attorney General, administered the oath. After 4 years as an attorney in private practice, most recently with the law firm of Miller Nash, LLP, Steve has decided to serve in the public sector. Steve welcomes fellow alumni to contact him at marlowes@myuw.net.

Martin J. Pujolar

Martin J. Pujolar, was made a partner at the law firm of Lincoln, Gustafson & Cercos in Las Vegas, NV. According to one of the partners at the firm, Marty has shown the hard work, dedication, professionalism and loyalty required to be a partner at the firm. Congratulations, Marty!

'02 Scott Schillinger joined the Anchorage Alaska law firm of Davison & Davison Inc. as an associate attorney. His practice will focus on business law and construction litigation. Schillinger has a bachelor’s in political science, a law degree from Gonzaga University and a master of laws in taxation. He previously worked as a special agent with the U.S. Department of Defense and as an insurance claims representative.

Josh Bowland frees innocent man with DNA evidence in his first case

By Lee Benson, Deseret Morning News

'03 Josh Bowland isn't the highest paid attorney in Salt Lake City and he sure doesn't have the most experience. He only graduated from Gonzaga University law school a year ago, and he's been practicing law all of five months.

But there wasn't an attorney in town Bowland wanted to trade places with last week when he watched as his client, Bruce Goodman, won his freedom after 19 years behind bars.

It was a scene straight out of a John Grisham novel. There was Josh, offering his sweater to Goodman as he emerged from the Utah State Prison on a crisp

Josh Bowland and a grateful Bruce Goodman.

November day with nothing but the shirt on his back and a big 'ol smile on his face. For the first time since he was 35 years old and sent to prison for a murder he steadfastly insisted he did not commit, the once-condemned man drew a breath of free air.

Besides Josh, other staffers from the Rocky Mountain Innocence Center (RMIC) were there to welcome Goodman, along with a girlfriend from Indiana Goodman found via prison correspondence. She drove all night so she could pick him up and take him back to Michigan City, where a job and an apartment without bars on the windows await.

But first there were some loose ends to tie up, the most pressing of which was a celebratory dinner at the Red Iguana, a Mexican restaurant in Salt Lake, where Goodman toasted his lawyer for a job well done, and they both raised a toast to the science of DNA testing — for without it Goodman would yet be proclaiming his innocence from the inside of a prison cell.

Last summer, Josh landed his job at the RMIC, a Robin Hoodesque foundation launched in Salt Lake City nearly five years ago for the express purpose of reviewing questionable convictions pro bono. "We focus primarily on physical evidence that can be subjected to DNA testing," says Josh. "It's a tangible area courts might be willing to look at. Just saying, 'I didn't do it,' doesn't get you very far."

Among the cases that landed on Josh's desk — he's the RMIC's only staff attorney — was Goodman's. In July, Josh filed the legal petitions that were successful in sending bodily fluids taken into evidence from the 1984 murder of 21-year-old Sherry Ann Fales Williams — the murder Goodman was convicted of committing — to Orchid Cellmark, a private DNA testing lab in Dallas, Texas.

In September, the lab returned its findings that not only were none of the fluids Goodman's but that DNA obtained from both a rape kit and from elsewhere at the crime scene belonged to the same man — meaning an unidentified male had been both sexually intimate with the victim and was at the place where she was murdered. A faceless, nameless suspect who was "absolutely not" Goodman.

Josh won't soon forget the visit he took to the jail to tell Goodman the news.

"I was going to lay it all out for him, very legal-like," he says, "but I was as excited as a kid, and as soon as he saw my face he said, 'See, I told you so.'"

The same thing Goodman had been saying for 19 years.

It is Josh's and the RMIC's hope that this is just the start of victories for the falsely accused in the enlightened era of DNA identification. When an innocent man is exonerated, the payday is enormous for everyone concerned.

"It was worth it just to see the smile on his face," says Josh, a lawyer who, no matter how many more cases he wins in his career, may never top the first one.

GU, EWU Collaborate in New JD/MSW Dual Degree Program

Eastern Washington University's School of Social Work and Human Services will collaborate with the Gonzaga University School of Law to create a four-year dual degree program during which students will receive both a law degree from Gonzaga and a master's degree in social work from EWU.

The initiative—called the Dual JD/MSW Degree Program—will begin as a pilot program this fall, admitting four students per year for three years. At the end of this time the program will be reevaluated to accommodate students' interests, and refined to best meet students' needs.

One of the major reasons for this public-private institutional collaboration is to meet the current need for social workers trained in the law and lawyers trained in social work. Social workers and lawyers often practice their respective professions in relation to the same areas of human need and activity. However, lawyers and social workers typically practice in light of their own specialized training, lacking a command of the relevant knowledge, skills, and perspectives of the other discipline so significant to their work. This program will meet all applicable accreditation guidelines set forth by the American Bar Association and the Council on Social Work Education.

Michael Frumkin, dean of the School of Social Work and Human Services at EWU, said an integrated educational experience combining the two disciplines will educate more savvy and effective professionals in the fields of law and social work.

"We will create practitioners with a strong commitment to social justice, who are more than simply lawyers or social workers," Frumkin said. ■
